1 When an answer cites the wrong page, the fix is in the documents. Here's how to find it.

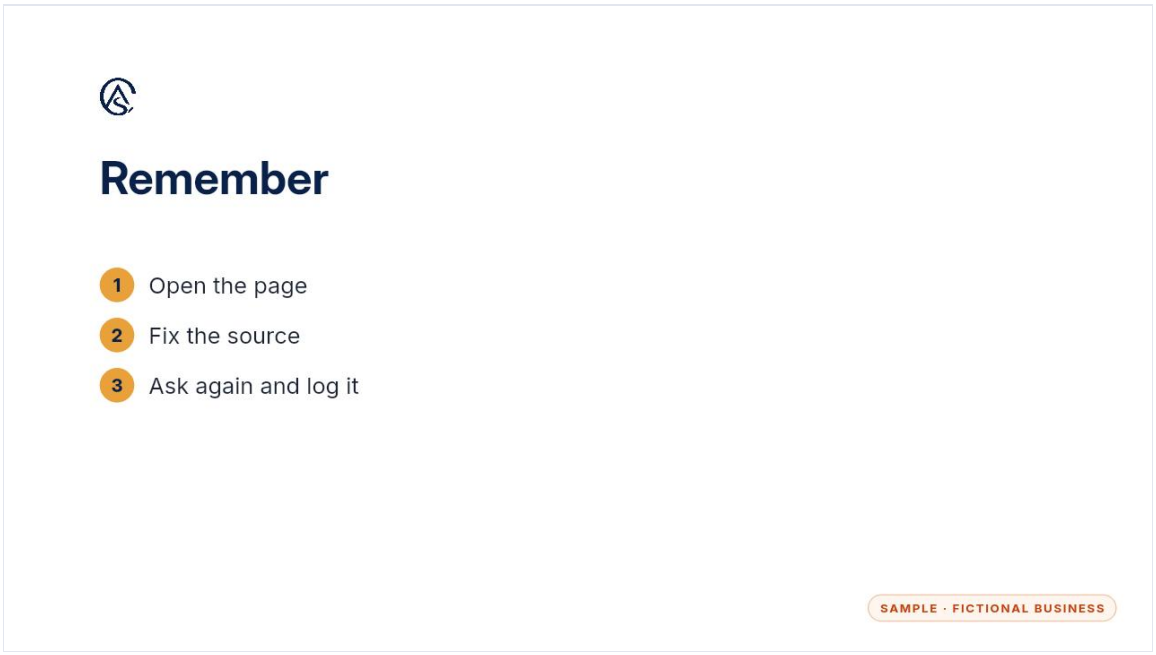

2 Open the cited page. If it doesn't say what the answer says, something in the source needs fixing.

3 Look for an old version still in the folder, two files with similar names, or a missing starting rule. Fix that one thing.

4 Ask again, check the new page, and note the fix in your answer check log.

5 Open the page, fix the source, and ask again.
